

Amendments to the Specification:

Page 3, after line 33, please insert the following paragraph:

As used in this application, the phrase "publisher's computer" refers to a publication production computer system operated by a publishing company. The computer system will typically consist of one or more computers and are located as desired by the publishing company. Elsewhere in this application, the term "production computer system" is used. The term "production computer system" and "publisher's computer" are used interchangeably and are intended to have the same meaning.